

In 2004, after felling his last chimney and retiring from steeplejacking, Fred took to the road on his beloved traction engine for the BBC series Made in Britain. Travelling the length and breadth of the country, the intention was to seek out the remarkable achievements of the craftsmen, engineers, inventors and industrial workers whose endeavour made engines like Freds possible. It was a journey that took him to Britains most iconic engineering marvels as well as less familiar sites: from the Forth Bridge and the Middlesbrough Transporter Bridge to Europes last deep-working iron ore mine in Cumbria and a local castings workshop in Boness. This behind-the-scenes account of that ambitious journey is made all the more remarkable by Freds heroic efforts to complete it while suffering from terminal cancer. It is not only a glorious testament to our nations industrial achievements but also a story of the friendships, unflinching courage and determination of the nations favourite steeplejack.
