

DETECTIVE AND STUDENT NURSE? What kind of person would dream of harming the elderly? How could such a thing ever happen in a place as nice as Marian Manor? These are the thoughts that plague Nora Brady, the young student nurse assigned to the lovely nursing home in Jacobsport, a small coastal town in northern California. When cherished belongings of the residents begin disappearing and several residents die unexpectedly, Nora is forced to act. While carefully observing those around her, she looks for clues, follows her hunches and plays detective as well as student nurse. But not everyone involved is happy with Noras investigation and Dan Maguire is one of them. Hes the young police detective assigned to the case who believes that the police should handle all crime investigations. Eventually, however, he realizes that it helps to have someone on the inside-and the inside of Marian Manor is certainly filled with colorful characters, from Noras co-workers and nurse managers to the residents with whom she loves spending time. Mystery at Marian Manor offers a glimpse into the world of nursing today and how one student nurse succeeded in making a difference! ABOUT THE AUTHOR: M.E. Roche has been a nurse for nearly 40 years, working in many settings across the United States and in Ireland. She continues to work and lives with her family in northern California.
