

Janie Blackmore has been living a double life for so long it's her second nature. One night it all begins to unravel when she meets the new bouncer at her favorite club. He's not even her type so she's not sure why she's finding the handsome stranger irresistible and that just won't do. Damien Witt is used to girls chasing him and wanting more than he is willing to give. What he is not used to is a woman who doesn't want anything to do with him and will resort to violence to escape his touch. The alpha male in him is vexed by her hellcat behavior and eager to tame her. Things become problematic for these two when he decides he's going to do something to her that he's never done before and something that, little does he know, she's never had done to her before; he decides to embark on a romance with her, but she won't fall without a fight. Worlds collide as he learns the truth about the first girl he wants for more than a one night stand. She has a past that threatens to end everything between them and in a possibly very permanent way. Can Janie surrender to what may be the best thing that has ever happened to her? Or will she stay lost in the deceit and games that have become a way of life? Can Damien let his dominate side submit long enough to win a place in her heart? Or will these two remain victims of their own familiar routines? This is book three in The Heartland Series, but can be read independently. This book contains explicit sex and adult situations.
