

A collection of colorful stories about the adventures of Polish sailors during World War II, with the Polish merchant marine demonstrating their heroic devotion alongside their allies in their fight against Nazi Germany. The author, who himself during the war often sailed under the Polish flag, perfectly describes the bravery and strength of these ordinary people. In the pages of this book we meet a whole gallery of authentic characters, from captains and officers as well as sailors who were all thrown together by cruel fate into their circumstances, maintain their dignity, courage, and often humor during such difficult times. Accompanied throughout with never before published photographs taken by the author himself, this book serves as a reminder of these peoples contribution to the war effort.
